Volume 46:2

The Gateway to the Americas

PRACTITIONER ARTICLES AND STUDENT NOTES

The Inter-American Law Review (IALR) has always had a special place at the University of Miami School of Law. Both the journal and the law school represent the important connection between the United States and the Americas. Indeed, Miami is the Gateway to the Americas. IALR has always analyzed the legal, social, and economic connections among people in the Western Hemisphere and beyond. Volume 46:2 (Spring 2015) touches on legal education in the United States, transnational litigation in light of the Chevron-Ecuador legal saga, the Argentinian bond crisis, and the administration of healthcare in the contiguous U.S. and Puerto Rico.

In Educación Legal en los Estados Unidos II: Educación de Postgrado, Educación Continuada, y Consideraciones Comparativas, Maria Elena Cobas Cobiella and M.C. Mirow offer Part 2 of their two part article that delves into the unique methodologies that exist in American law schools. They offer a unique perspective as they aim to educate foreign professors and practitioners on the structure and rigor of American legal education. It is with great pleasure that IALR publishes the second part of this informative article.

Our next article, A Sour Battle in Lago Agrio and Beyond: The Metamorphosis of Transnational Litigation and the Protection of Collective Rights in Ecuador, Manuel Gomez discusses the various dispute resolution mechanisms available in transnational litigation and how those mechanisms were applied in the Chevron-Ecuador legal battle.

In addition to the two articles, we offer two student papers, the first written by our Student Writing Editor, Irakli (“Eric”) Shalolashvili. Eric offers An Analysis of the Argentinian Bond Crisis. His note focuses on Argentina’s historic default on nearly $94 billion of sovereign debt and how the Second Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in favor of the bondholders, sending shockwaves throughout the international bond market.

Former Staff Editor, Casaundra Johnson offers Crossroads: How the Intersection of Technology, Medicine, and the Law,

1. B.A., University of Florida 2011. J.D. Candidate, May 2015.

Impact the Administration of Healthcare in Florida and Puerto Rico. In her comment, she discusses how the use of technology has drastically changed the administration of healthcare, as patients now have greater access to doctors. Casaundra analyzes the use of telemedicine, recent legislative proposals to address the use of telemedicine, and what impact these proposals may have. Most importantly, she discusses how telemedicine can be used to significantly help minority and underserved groups gain access to healthcare.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many acknowledgments and thanks are due for the production of Volume 46:2. First we would like to thank our staff editors, who perform all of the foundational work here at IALR. IALR staff editors work across multiple language barriers, and they are highly resourceful when finding hard-to-reach sources. I continued to have the opportunity to work closely with many of them as they learned the rigorous editing process and continued to develop their writing skills. In addition to the staff editors, sincerest thanks are due to the 2014-2015 Executive Board and the Articles and Comments Editors, all of whom have made tremendous sacrifices in their academic and personal lives for this publication. Next we would like to thank Professor Keith Rosenn, our faculty advisor and resident Latin America expert. We also thank Ms. Gloria Garcia, our administrative assistant, for her tireless work ethic and constant communication with myself and the rest of IALR's staff.

IALR is also extremely grateful to Dean Janet E. Stearns, the Dean of Students, who by offering unparalleled support, has been instrumental in IALR's success in recent years, and also to Dean Patricia White, the Dean of the University of Miami School of Law. We are heavily indebted to Emily Horowitz, (J.D. 2012), a special advisor to our law review who has supported us with patient guidance at every juncture of the publication. Finally, we thank faculty members with Inter-American interests who provide us with both academic and moral support.
